Acme Analytics Refund and Cancellation Policy

Version 3.2 - effective 1 January 2026

1. Refund eligibility

Acme Analytics offers a 30-day money-back guarantee on all new annual subscriptions. A customer may request a full refund within 30 calendar days of the original purchase date, provided the account has used fewer than 5,000 dashboard queries during that period.

Monthly subscriptions are refundable only within the first 7 days of the initial purchase. Renewal payments for monthly plans are not refundable, but the customer may cancel at any time to avoid the next billing cycle.

Professional services such as onboarding workshops and custom connector development are non-refundable once work has started. Unused prepaid service hours are refunded in full if the customer cancels at least 10 business days before the scheduled start date.

2. How to request a refund

Refund requests must be submitted through the Billing page of the customer portal or by emailing billing@acme-analytics.example with the order identifier. Requests sent to sales representatives or through social media are not processed.

The Billing team acknowledges every request within 2 business days. Approved refunds are issued to the original payment method within 10 business days of approval. Refunds for payments made by bank transfer are issued by transfer and may take up to 15 business days.

Refunds above 5,000 USD require a second approval from the Finance Manager before they are released.

3. Cancellation and partial periods

Annual subscriptions cancelled after the 30-day guarantee window are not refunded, but the service stays active until the end of the paid term. Acme Analytics does not prorate annual plans except where required by local law.

If Acme Analytics suspends an account because of a verified service outage longer than 24 consecutive hours, the customer receives a service credit equal to one day of the subscription fee for each full day of outage.